CCI CERTIFIED FOR FOURTH YEAR IN GRAPHIC ARTS TECHNICAL FOUNDATION – TOTAL PRODUCTION MAINTENANCE QUALITY ACCREDITATION PROGRAM
CCI reinforces quality commitment and remains one of only four commercial printers in the nation to hold TPM certification.

HARTLAND, WI (June 19, 2008) – Commercial Communications, Inc. (CCI), a leader in document management, intelligent production, and information distribution solutions, has successfully maintained certification in the Graphic Arts Technical Foundation's Total Production Maintenance (TPM)/Registry Accreditation Program for the fourth year. In 2007 the company maintained a quality a percentage rate of 99.76% on all production orders.

The TPM program is the only accredited quality management system standard that has been developed specifically for the graphics arts processes and focuses on optimizing and maintaining the quality output of the pre-press, press, and post-press production equipment of graphic arts companies. TPM improves, manages, and controls pre-production, production, and post-production operations. CCI applies the TPM philosophy and commitment to quality assessment to every aspect of the business, from print to technology solutions.

Auditors focus on the main elements of maintenance, calibration, and process control activities and conduct audits once every 12 months to comply with the TPM Registry Certificate requirements. In addition, internal audits are conducted by CCI semi-annually.

"CCI takes quality seriously. By participating in the Total Production Maintenance program through PIA/GATF, we routinely perform maintenance, calibration and process control activities on a daily basis to ensure productivity, consistency and quality respectively. We've attained TPM registration four years in a row. TPM has become ingrained as part of our culture and affects every operator to ensure continued growth and success," said Joan Windhauser, CCI's Quality Assurance Manager.
